After magical experiences working at Walt Disney World in Florida and Disneyland Paris, I joined the Graduate programme at Vodafone HQ in Newbury, working my way up to Marketing Manager. I left Vodafone in 2014 to pursue a Masters Degree in Hospitality, travelling the world in the process. After a few months living in Australia, I returned to Vodafone before moving to the US permanently and marrying my husband, an Air Force Pilot. We now live in Florida, where I write as an entertainment and theme park journalist - and have also just published my first children's book.

Trinity for me was a period of growth - from a shy little boffin to someone who found my voice and confidence. My teachers were always so down to earth and so personable, and I've stayed in contact with many of them through the years. I also loved seeing my brother get the support he needed in the ACE unit. And of course, Trinity was full of fun! From trips to Barcelona and France and crazy charity days, to classroom antics and my close bunch of friends, we were always laughing.
